1. BACKGROUND:

This jointly funded initiative is supported by Parks Canada (Cave and Basin National Historic Site) and the Whyte Museum of the Canadian Rockies. It is an opportunity to create 4 large temporary murals (approx. 8ft wide x 8ft high x 8ft long cubes) for temporary display at Cave and Basin National Historic Site in Banff, Alberta. These murals will provide Indigenous artists from communities with traditional connections to the Cave and Basin, Banff and the Bow Valley with a space to express their perspectives on Indigenous histories in the region. This is an opportunity for Indigenous Artists, Elders and Community members as well as Parks Canada and the Whyte Museum staff to come together, connect with the site and share perspectives through art and storytelling. The completed murals will be an opportunity for all visitors to the Cave and Basin to learn about the diverse Indigenous stories, histories and experiences that live in this special place.

Site Description: Situated just outside the Town of Banff at the base of Sulphur Mountain, Cave and Basin has been a special place for Indigenous Peoples for over ten thousand years to the present. It is also the site of Canada's first national park, where settlers built swimming pools, historic architecture and tourism activity following the arrival of the railway. At the heart of this multi-layered and sometimes difficult history are the mineral hot springs, geological features and unique ecology that have drawn people here for millennia. Today, the site is a national historic site and museum visited each year by hundreds of thousands of people from around the world; a gathering place for sharing stories about the connections between people and the land in special places across the northern reaches of Turtle Island.

Mentorship: Indigenous arts and culture hold an immeasurable wealth of knowledge, and for centuries Elders and knowledge keepers have provided support systems for younger generations on Turtle Island. As Elders, artists and community members pass, that loss of knowledge combined with integration of different world views reduces and limits opportunities to continue to "pass the fire". The goal of embedding a mentorship opportunity within this art project is to provide positive experiences through the transfer of knowledge, thus strengthening Indigenous artistic voices within the public art and art exhibition fields.

The Mural Boxes project will be guided by Dawn Saunders Dahl (the Whyte Museum), Angus Leech (Parks Canada) with support from professional artists AJA Loudon and Dene artist Nathan Meguinis, Indigenous Elders, Knowledge Keepers and Indigenous guest artists with significant experience making public art will also make an important contribution to the project, by providing guidance and mentorship to Indigenous Mentees.

2. GOALS:

Since a time beyond memory, the Cave and Basin, Banff and surrounding areas have been a place for gathering, healing, trade, travel, cultural exchange, economic activity, spiritual practice and ceremony in connection with the land. Over thousands of years to the present, many different peoples have lived in and visited this place, making it what it is today—a landscape multi-layered with stories, languages, memories and perspectives. The purpose of the Cave and Basin Mural Boxes project is to honour the rich Indigenous history and contemporary significance of this place through an art initiative that shares visual stories from a diversity of Indigenous community perspectives, making these stories visible to all site visitors in the form of colorful murals created by emerging Indigenous artists. Principles guiding this project include truth, inclusion, gathering, sharing, exchange of knowledge and perspectives across diverse cultural boundaries, storytelling, land, language, reconciliation and healing. The guiding theme for the project will be "Stories of this Place". The intent of the project partners (Parks Canada and Whyte Museum) is that the large-scale mural box artworks will:

- Welcome and intrigue site visitors from local communities and around the world;
- Tell visually-compelling stories about the rich Indigenous history of Banff and Cave and Basin, from a diversity of Indigenous community and cultural perspectives;
- Inspire the general public to learn about, and become more aware of, Indigenous Ways of Knowing, Ways of Doing, Ways of Connecting and Ways of Being, including connections with the land, cultural values and the unique meanings of this special place to Indigenous communities.

- Remind viewers of both “Truth” and “Reconciliation”— the important work that we all must do to learn the truths, and actively reconcile the consequences of these truths, in the spaces where we learn, work and socialize;
- Offer a physical representation and manifestation of the commitments that Parks Canada and the Whyte Museum of the Canadian Rockies have made to reconciliation, right relations and action.
- Contribute to the long-term goal of decolonizing sites like Cave and Basin and making Banff a safe, welcoming and culturally responsive space for Indigenous peoples and participation.

5. ARTIST MENTEE OPPORTUNITY:

Cave and Basin National Historic Site (Parks Canada Agency) and the Whyte Museum of the Canadian Rockies seek up to four Indigenous Artists (mentees) to collaboratively create four large-scale temporary murals, to be displayed prominently at Cave and Basin. The Artist Mentees will work with professional artists and the Project Coordinators (Dawn Saunders Dahl and Angus Leech) to design and create the artwork in consultation with Indigenous Artists, Elders and Knowledge Keepers.

Mentorship and guidance will be provided to the mentee participants in all aspects of the public art-making process, including but not limited to the following areas:

- Content creation
- Idea generation and design development
- Art-making skills
- Fabrication and installation
- Project management skills including budget, timeline, and reporting

This call is open to all Indigenous Artists 18 years of age and older from Indigenous partner communities with strong connections to the site who are looking to increase their knowledge of mural painting and large-scale public art-making. Identified partner nations for Cave and Basin National Historic Site include Îyârhe Nakoda (Goodstoney, Bearspaw and Chiniki), Blackfoot (Siksika, Kainai, Piikani), Tsuut'ina, Ktunaxa, Secwépemc and Métis. Artists selected in 2022/23 were from Tsuut'ina, Chiniki, Kainai, Ktunaxa, Secwépemc and Métis communities.

Priority in 2024 will therefore be given to Treaty 7 artists from Îyârhe Nakoda (Goodstoney, Bearspaw) and Blackfoot (Siksika, Piikani) nations who have yet to share their stories of this place. Please note: You do not need to be currently living in the area your nation is located in, but you must be a member of either the Îyârhe Nakoda or Blackfoot nations (artists from Siksika, Piikani, Goodstoney and Bearspaw will be given priority).

This mural project and mentorship program will provide participants with opportunities to build their art-making skills, as well as skills in project management for public art-making. Participants will have the chance to conduct research at the Whyte Museum and Cave and Basin National Historic Site, to network and build new relationships that support their art-making practices. It will be a valuable opportunity to connect with new audiences, and to have artworks seen by large numbers of travellers and locals deeply interested in Indigenous culture and Banff history. The ideal candidate(s) will demonstrate evidence of their commitment to art-making and efforts they have made to progress their artistic career. They will demonstrate a desire and willingness to learn and benefit from this rare mentorship opportunity. Candidates are encouraged, but not required, to have at least some previous experience making art in different mediums.
